SONNET

To wander aimlessly through dark and light
 To know the answer yet to know not why
 The sun and stars shine clearly in the sky
 And everywhere the people love and fight.
 And suddenly a vision at a height
 And people start to laugh and start to cry
 And all the ocean's fishes start to fly
 And all the world is over in one night.
 There's emptiness yet everything is there
 And everything's been said yet no one spoke
 There's raindrops from the sky but not a cloud
 And where is everything, where is the air?
 There is no fire yet there are clouds of smoke
 Then no one said a word, He spoke aloud.

SUNRISE

A darkness blanketed the earth.
 Suddenly a glow in the distance.
 A blaze; as if the very trees were afire.
 The darkness retreated,
 Like a snake it slithered away.
 Quickly, the victorious conqueror came forth.
 Its very glow warmed the world.
 Slowly, the peace-loving beings came forth
 To give thanks, each in his own way.
 Some sang, but most just drank
 From the cool waters of the lake.
 All were happy.
 The world was at peace.

FEAR

She weeps silently
In the night
So no-one can hear
She is alone
Afraid to face the next day
Living in the past
It frightens her
To face the reality
She has lived
She will sit here forever
Crying in the night
For fear within herself

Linda Lambert

The Frog

The frog sits, sunning in the mud
By the creek, motionless,
Waiting for an unsuspecting victim
In the shape of a fly
To come within its grasp.

But while it sits there
Waiting for its meal,
A human being comes along
And stamps it with his heel.

And as the man walks on
To leave the frog to die,
Not far off in a tree
There sits a common fly.

Several Gods in Praise of Practically Nothing

I have several gods
None of which is recognized religion:
One is Leonard Cohen,
One of the world's larger gods.
Another of my several gods
Is a certain form of alcohol,
Which helps to keep a steady soul
For life's various odds.
My next special god is Greece,
Since I heard the "santouri"
And listened to the stories of Stavridaki
Who gave a description of idealistic and unending peace.
I haven't found my last god,
But I can be sure it will be feminine,
Not trapped like a crumb in a biscuit-tin
And with more expression than a hollow log.
Thus I arrive at this:
Of the several gods in praise of practically nothing,
If I have a life containing
All of these, it has some purpose.

Adams snuffed out his cigar in the heavy silver ash-tray and contemplated his surroundings. He approved.

Across the well-appointed room, he saw Travers lean back in his chair and put a glass of sherry to his lips. Adams smiled. This was a completely new experience for Travers and he was savouring it, as if it might suddenly end.

"Nothing but the best from now on, Tom," mused Adams, studying the label on a fresh cigar. "No-one will ever know that it wasn't a stroke that killed Mr. Harte."

Travers set down the glass and breathed deeply. "No, and no one will ever guess that the will is forged. We're home free now, Adams."

Adams bit the end of the cigar. "Yes, old Mr. Harte will keep us sprawling in the lap of luxury for the rest of our lives - posthumously, of course." Both men chuckled quietly.

Travers crossed his legs and shifted himself. "Harte was pretty well-off all right."

"You might even say that I was extremely well-off, Mr. Travers."

Two pairs of eyes flashed in the direction of the voice, and saw a tall, lean figure standing in the doorway. Wraith-like, it moved forward.

"My estate has been estimated to be worth approximately four million, Mr. Adams. You and your friend Mr. Travers would indeed be happy for a long time with that. However, it is not to be." The figure stalked forward slowly.

Adams pulled himself half out of his chair. "Harte," he whispered chokingly. "You're...you're dead! We killed you two days ago! You're supposed to be buried today!"

"Yes, Mr. Adams, I know. And I must hurry. I'd hate to be late for my funeral." His hand dipped into his breast pocket and withdrew a tiny wicked-looking revolver. "You know, you two did an admirable job. You fooled everybody. I feel it is my duty to pay you back." He was advancing steadily.

Adams fought the words out. "He - he'll kill us! Travers! He..."

But Travers did not hear Adams, nor did the eyes in his ashen upturned face see the figure before him. His hands were locked in a death-grip on the arms of his chair. Travers no longer cared.

Desperately, Adams turned to face Harte. "You'll never get away with it! The lobby is swarming with people."

Harte's outstretched arm steadied itself in Adams' direction. "Oh yes, Mr. Adams, I'll get away with it." Evilly, his lips parted, and his finger tightened. "You forget - I'm dead."

MY PLANT

I have a potted plant
That sits upon the sill.
The flower is red
With a purple fragrance.

My mother says
That life has more meaning
Than my potted plant.
My father is too drunk to care.

My mother says
That I must be rich,
Before I can honestly love
A potted plant.

My father just wants
Me to marry
A rich diplomat
Of Germany.

My mother wants
Me to marry too,
A rich man
Of the same high standing.

I love my potted plant.
It's a geranium.

WINE

A bottle of wine
Is poised upon the table
The smell is wafting up
To dull my senses.
Beside it lies an apple
And a pear
Sitting as a still-life oil
Lying on my table.
A glass is waiting
With the bottle
And the fruit
For those who choose
To forget.

PROGRESS

A flower garden
Is sunning itself in my yard
I watched it grow
And nourished its existence
To the very roots of its being
I watched it flourish
Waving its leaves in gratitude
For my help in its youth
Now you come
With a metal predator
To plough my flower garden
Into its grave
And you expect me to be Grateful.

THE MOUNTAIN LION

Long, narrow, sleek.
Floating, gliding on the powdery snow.
Silent, it is a breath of wind, here - there.

Last year's doe, digging for vegetation.

No wind,
no scent of the ghostly predator.

Crisp, glistening eyes, assessing the innocent victim.
The predator calculates, prepares.

The doe moves on,
no vegetation.
The death shadow follows.

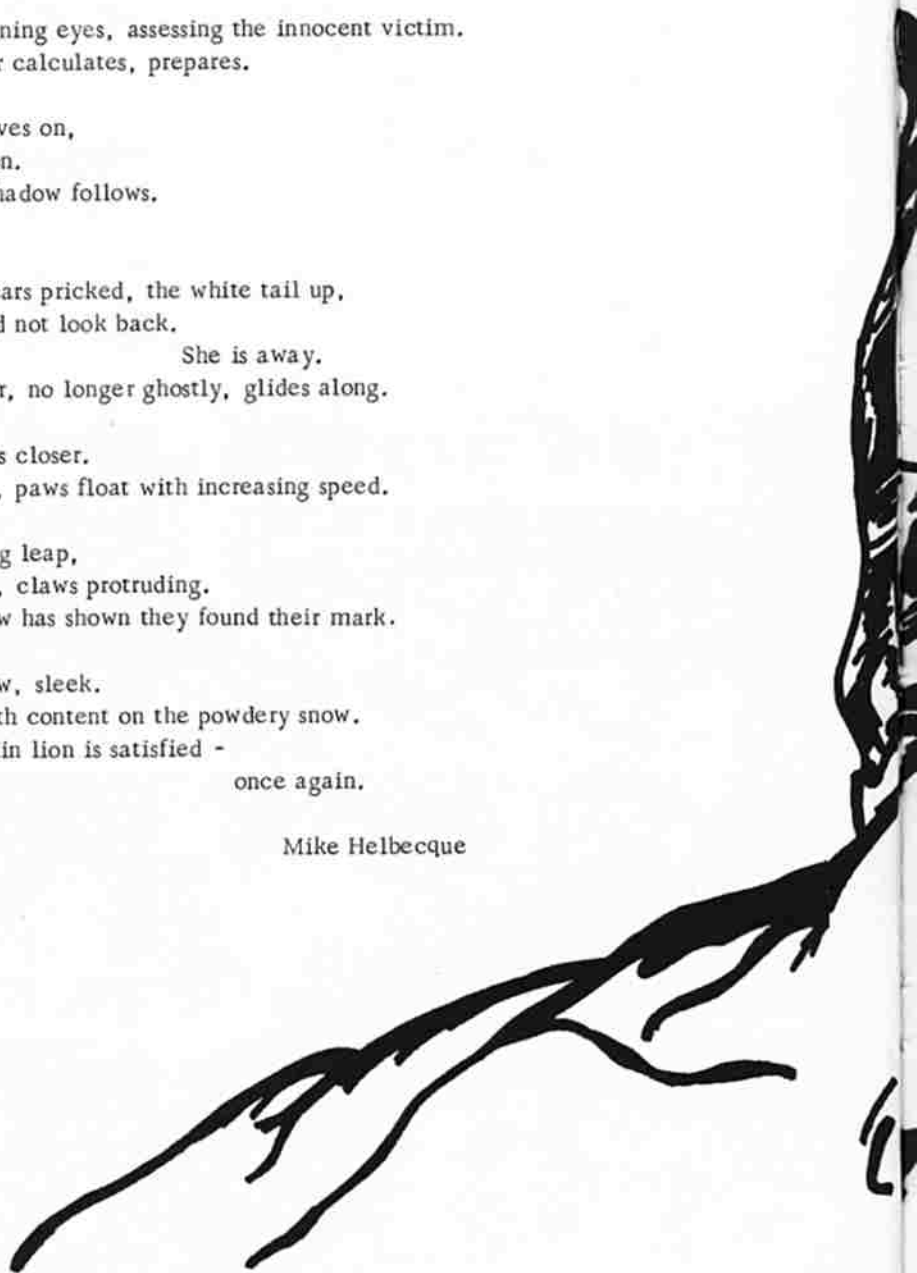

SNAP!
The ears pricked, the white tail up,
the doe need not look back.
She is away.
The predator, no longer ghostly, glides along.

Death strides closer.
Hooves sink, paws float with increasing speed.

Now - a long leap,
teeth agape, claws protruding.
The red snow has shown they found their mark.

Long, narrow, sleek.
Prancing with content on the powdery snow.
The mountain lion is satisfied - once again.

Bell Beats Confederation 13-6

The seniors were defeated early in the season by Borden and Confederation as a result of several fumbles on punt returns.

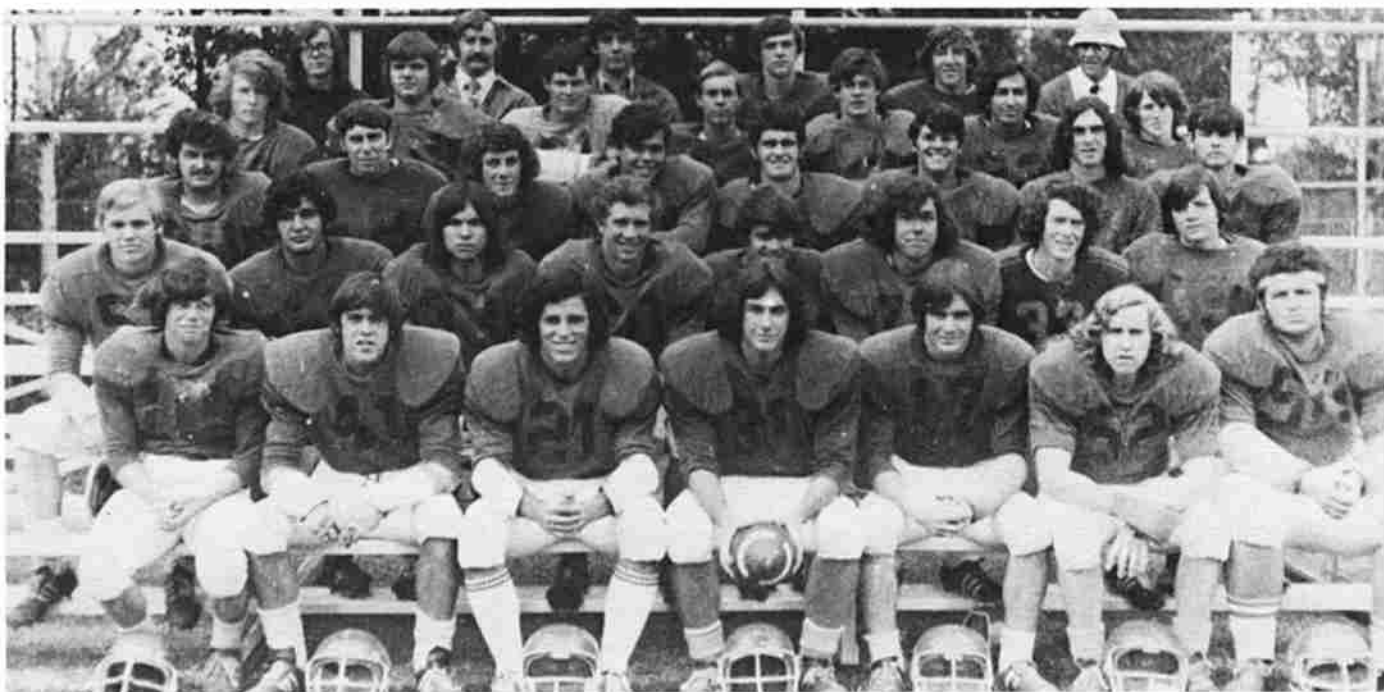

The team did not give up. In the second last game they defeated Confederation 13-6 in the best game of the year.

A win in the last game against Borden would have resulted in a three-way tie for first place. After a long, hard fought and frustrating game, the score was 2-2. By virtue of this tie Borden took first place in the league.

Not a championship, but a good season by a good team.

Vice-Principal Coaches Juniors

Coaching the junior boys' football team was a real pleasure this year. Before coming to Bell I had coached for twelve years, but in my first two years at Bell I had to give up coaching because of the administrative duties of vice-principal. This year, thanks to the principal, Mr. MacLean, I was given permission to coach again.

I had been warned that "Kids have changed--you will not be able to get them to do the things you used to be able to." However, I found that the boys had not changed and worked very hard at all times. In many ways, the team was keener than all the teams I had coached in the past.

We won four games and lost two. Both our losses were to Borden, who were eventually city champions.

It is difficult to single out individuals in a team sport, but mainly responsible for our success, by their hard work and leadership, were Chris Brown, Bill Kearns, and Rob Salisbury.

We will be tough to beat next year, and we have high hopes for an even better season.

I wish to thank all the players for representing Bell this year. --E. T. Robillard, Coach

Bruins Win

City Championship

This year Bell had the best year in hockey since 1968. To a strong nucleus of players from last year, we added six new players and came up with a well-balanced attack.

From the beginning of the year we had confidence that this was going to be the year to take the city finals. We decided to find out early where the really tough opposition was going to be. From the exhibition season we saw that this opposition was going to be Sir Wilfred Laurier or Ridgmont.

Up until Christmas, we had played 12 games and were leading in the western division.

During the Christmas holidays the team travelled to Sudbury for the National Hockey Tournament. There were teams from New Brunswick, Manitoba, Quebec, Ottawa, North Bay and Sudbury. Unfortunately, we had to play the strongest team the same night as our arrival - after bouncing all the way up to Sudbury. We lost what was basically a 4 - 3 game, 6 - 3 to Copper Cliff, the first night out.

After that, there was no looking back. We beat Lo-Ellen Park of Sudbury 8 - 3, then Lockerby, also from Sudbury, 8 - 1 for the consolation cup. The entire team was thrilled with the tournament: the billets were excellent, the fans and coaches very sporting. The whole affair was first class.

After Christmas, we had 11 league games of which we won 10 and tied 1. On Saturday, January 8th, we travelled to St. Lawrence University in Canton, New York. Although they were wonderful social hosts, they handed us our worst defeat, 7 - 0. The experience was invaluable, however, as we gained an appreciation of the U.S. college wide-open and fast-skating type of hockey.

At the end of regular season play our combined league and exhibition record was 24 wins, 2 losses, 1 tie.

Bell got a "bye", direct into the semi-finals, as our team had the best record in the city at that time. The semi-finals against St. Pat's was a rough and rugged series. We won the first game 7 - 0. However, St. Pat's roared back to give us very tough opposition in the next two games. The best we could muster was two ties, 3 - 3, 4 - 4. The four points gave us the series.

We met the defending city champions, Sir Wilfred Laurier, in the finals. The first game Bell was well in command and with real team effort came up with a 9 - 4 win. The second game was a cliff-hanger. With Bell leading 1 - 0 with ten minutes to go in the third period Sir Wil got two quick goals and the whole tone of the game had changed. We pulled Bill Allen out of his "home base" and they drove "one" into the empty net. The game ended 3 - 1 for Sir Wilfred Laurier.

However, defeat did not hang lightly on the shoulders of the Bell Bruins. The final game was never in doubt. Gord Porter went out and scored the first three goals, and just before the end of the first period Doug Grills "deked" the goalie for the winner. At the end of the second period it was 6 - 1 on goals by Ron Carkner and Kyle Smith. We won 6 - 3.

WOW! ZOT! YIPS! GOSH! WE HAD WON THE CITY CHAMPIONSHIP!

It was a total team effort. The whole team was the most valuable player.

At the time of writing, Bell is waiting to go to the "all-Ontario" meet in Essex, near Windsor.

Even though 13 is an unlucky number, Leigh was the fastest shot in the West.

Kathy Caught (10)

"Karate Chop" Kathy gave up a promising career in wrestling to play for our basketball team.

Arien Heath (21)

The captain of our team this year, Arien "Flipped" Heath, used her Right Guard every game.

Diane Jackson (30)

"Russ" Jackson's playing picked up (off the floor) during the season. Benches will never be the same without Diane.

Karen Ladd (14)

Karen is known as "Peaches". Ask anyone in the league about Karen's right elbow and they will say "Ouch!"

Semon Luk (31)

"Lucky" was the only girl on the team who could look genuinely innocent when she got a foul.

Debbie Miner (32)

To Debbie, "Lightning Boots", backover meant crossing centre court before she shot.

Susan Owens (33)

"Stretch" is the only one on the team who can do a lay-up lying down.

Jocelyn Shenfield (25)

On or off the court dark corners always attract Jocelyn.

Jocelyn Verdon (15)

Greg Forbes seems to have taught "Hip Chick" a lot about hip checks.

Andrea Prokopowich

Mrs. Webb, Coach

Happiness is beating your husband's basketball team.

We are quite proud of our record this year, having finished first in our Border League with only one defeat in our regular season schedule. We defeated Woodroffe in the quarter-finals, Brookfield in the semi-finals. Both were hard fought series. In the finals against Laurier we lost the first two games, but not without a good fight. This meant, however, that we had to settle for second spot.

Our success was mainly due to Mrs. Webb's capable coaching. She guided us through thick and thin. Credit must also go to our loyal fans, whose excuses for not having homework done included, "But teacher, they couldn't have won without me."

We feel that we accomplished a lot this season and look forward to next year.

The team enjoyed a successful season, finishing second in their league. The highlights of the season were the last two games against Borden: the team won the first one easily; the other by scoring the winning basket with twelve seconds left in the game. The Junior Girls

The team showed real spirit. We ended the regular season with a record of 14 out of 20 wins. We finished tied for second place with Earl of March, and broke the tie by winning three straight games. We went into quarter finals at Bell and, by winning the first three against Canterbury, went on to meet Sir Wilfred Laurier. Here, Bell went down fighting. Laurier won the first two games, Bell the third, and Laurier the fourth to take the series.

In general, the team was noted for singing on the bus through open windows, and throwing orange peels at signs.

Janet Arts: our scorekeeper never trusted other scorekeepers.

Ruth Boyling: "Rufus" - sideline cheerer and spiker.

Sharon Collins: "Ug" - scowling Sharon scares the opposition - song leader, joke teller and general noise maker.

Jenny Currie: she pulls faces at the other teams - always manages to start orange throwing fights.

Arien Heath: "Hop-along-catastrophe" takes up a whole bus seat, but is a great scorekeeper/linesman.

Diane Jackson: "Spasticated", our captain - the only reason we missed the late bus was that she was always calling the refs over to "explain".

Chris Lalonde: "Dainty Toes" - Patty and Chris manage to have conferences every practice - especially during conditioning.

Debbie Miner: "Hazel" - in the last game of the season she learned to spike (over the net) - a fine time to learn.

Sue Phillips: our ballerina when she plays - she somehow got all the boys at Sir Wilfred Laurier to whistle at her.

Nicola Randall: the only one who flies when she hits a ball and talks to herself during a game - "Nic" gets out of class at the proper time, so we almost left her behind.

Sue Scherk: "Meatball" - Miss Ronning's bodyguard - when Sue misses a ball and falls on her knees she says, "My shoes stuck to the floor, honest."

Jo Ann Turner: "Jo" jumps up and down to prove her sore leg is O.K. to play on - "assistant coach" - she is constantly saying, "Cover, you guys."

Miss Ronning: our combination coach and slave-driver - she has a funny habit of kicking her leg up when we spike - we had great fun throwing her in the shower after the last game!

A special thanks to Mr. John Hugh, our bus driver, who put up with us and paid for half the pizza.

The Senior Girls

Though we didn't have a successful season, we had a lot of fun. The two highlights of the season were the new uniforms and the time we beat the first place team - Confederation. Special thanks go to Val Jackson, who kept the records straight, to Debbie Marcellus and Marion Fairbairn who went with us and cheered at every game, and to Miss Morgan who gave her time and effort to the team.

Curling

Senior Soccer

The players enjoyed their practices and were very enthusiastic about the game of soccer. Eric D'Aoust gave good leadership to the team, and next year with more experience we hope the Bell Senior Soccer Team can reach the play-offs and bring home the soccer cup. N.B. Peyton, Coach.

Next year, as the "old faithfuls" of the boys' team - Duncan Burch and Steve Green - will be graduating, we will need new and strong swimmers.

We look forward to yet another successful season.

The World's Greatest Coffee Makers

The main project of the Key Club this year has been the serving of coffee to the night school students. Success is measured by the fact that no purchaser died of food poisoning.

The "dump the pot of coffee" award goes to Mike Ladouceur, whereas Dave Turner (gaining valuable experience for his life's work) was very good mopping up Mike's decorating.

Mark Bouchier, by having an insatiable appetite for candy, made the sale of candy bars possible.

Jordie Bowen was adept at disposing of the garbage, though the custodial staff was justifiably annoyed at finding it in hidden places days later.

Brian Bertrand, our beloved treasurer, kept the loot (returns) safely in his dresser drawer.

Mark Showell looked after all financing by visiting his bank at peculiar hours.

Our thanks to Mrs. Houldsworth for her kindness and patience.

Reach for the Top

C for achievement, but A for effort: that is how this year's Reach for the Top team would rate. Unfortunately, as in all competition, it takes more than effort to take the laurel home. In fact, for a successful team, it takes skill, effort and experience, and a lot of luck. Effort was not lacking on the Bell High School team. Every noon hour, for two months, the players were drilled - really drilled. Lists and tables were made up for everything from the English Royal line of Succession, to a periodic table of the elements. World capitals were memorized, and the team mesmerized by styles of painting, Greek philosophy, mythology, and so on. You name it, and the odds were that the team knew something about it. Enthusiasm was certainly not lacking. What was missing was experience. For one thing, the whole team was tenderfoot: Bruce Atchison, Nancy Flood, Danny Laurenzio (all grade 12), and Francis Deragnacourt and the standby, Don Present (grade 11). Secondly, although an attempt was made to cover all subjects, there were handicaps - History, Literature before 1900, and a lack of quick responses.

The first (and last) game was against Ridgemont. Throughout the game the teams were separated by no more than 25 points. The last two minutes of all games are devoted to "snappers". These are short questions that require quick answers, and the fastest team gets 10 points for each correct answer. A fast way to pick up points? Just ask any member of the Ridgemont team.

Skill, experience and quick responses, however, are not the only things that win a game. There is that one unpredictable factor, upon which no amount of study, stamina, or anything else for that matter can have an effect. Luck - the one thing the '71-'72 Bell team could have made good use of!

The Band

The band enjoyed a very active year in 1971-1972. Many money-raising drives were held to finance the trip. Several concerts were put on at which both the Senior and Junior bands played. At the time of writing, the band's plans for the future include a tour of Western Canada with visits to Vancouver and Calgary.

In early December an exchange visit with M.M. Robinson High School in Burlington was undertaken. There the band's performances were well received.

Many thanks are due to Mr. Wood, Wayne Pettis, Nancy Flood, Alex Vorobej, Frank Schilder and Dave Salisbury for their dedication and hard work.

The Science Club

The Bell Science Club is an organization of students from different grades who meet on Tuesday and Wednesday after school to work on their individual science projects and experiments. Mr. Murphy kindly gives his time to supervise and help the students. The club is not a group of test tube maniacs who make smells and green gasses, but a club that covers a broad range of topics from all sciences. Now in its second year of operation, the club boasts a membership of twenty.

The Library Club

The Library Club this year started out with 29 members, and tries to give valuable assistance with library work such as shelving books and processing and circulating them. We also help with displays and filing and have weekly luncheons in the library.

A Visit to the 19th Century

The 1971-'72 Home Economics class did more than just cook and sew this year. On September 29th, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Smith and a group of interested mothers, we left here for Upper Canada Village. After we arrived, we divided into smaller groups and proceeded to tour the Village.

The 19th century atmosphere was more than evident as pioneer-dressed women re-lived home activities from that century and horse-pulled carts travelled the streets.

The wool factory was fascinating and most of us saw for the first time how wool was made, from the sheep to the blankets. The cheese factory supplied different types of cheese according to their age. There were even cheese curds, which were surprisingly very tasty. Many of us couldn't resist the smell of homemade whole-wheat bread being baked in a nearby shop, and all afternoon chunks of warm bread were being passed around.

The day passed quickly as we compared the housing to our housing, visited the museum, compared the cooking utensils and furniture to the modern day ones and generally had an interesting time.

Most of us agreed that although Upper Canada Village displayed the charm of 19th century living, we would rather enjoy the comfort of 20th century living.
